The OPPORTUNITY of TO-DAY

The opportunity for the man with little States of the Southwest than ever before in the history of the nation. To be sire, there is not the vast open choice of land for the homesteads that existed in the 19s. The lands then taken up under Goternment laws are now prosperous farms and rambes. There is need of more hands to develop the country. In the Southwest Indian Territory, Oklahom and Texas are vast areas of unimproved land not yet yielding the crops of which it is capable. Fractically the same thing is true of the towis. For lines of business are adequately represented. There are openings of all arts

CLERK DISPUTES JAILER'S BILL

Box 911, St. Louis, Mo.

Disagreement Over Fifty Cents for Care of Bill Rudolph While in St. Louis Jail.

Whether to pay 50 cents for a half day that Rill Rudolph never spent in the St. Louis jail, where he was kept so long, is a question that has caused a disagreement between Jatler Dawson and the County Clerk of Franklin County. In making out his bill for the keeping of Rudolph, Jalier Pawson charged for the whole day on which Rudolph arrived at the Four Courts. This made the bill to cents more than the Clerk thought it should be. The Clerk contends that as Rudolph did not arrive until moon, the Jalier has no right to charge for that day. It is understood also that the county less refused to now the exercises of Pinkers. refused to pay the expenses of Pinkerton detectives who captured Rudolph, and a suit against Franklin County has been Janer Lawson says his bill of $200 is cor rent and he has refused to accept the $250.00 which the County Clerk offers Several letters have already passed between the parties, and the 20 cents over which the trouble has arisen promises soon to be eaten up by postage.

ST. LOUIS ARTISTS HONORED AT CARTHAGE CONVENTION

Special Credit Accorded to Singers and Instrumentalists of This City at the Music Teachers' Assemblage - Weltner Conservatory Holds Graduation Exercises-Musical Notes.

St. Louis artists received honors at the St. Louis Music Teachers' Convention at Carthage last week. The vocalists and instrumentalists who appeared on the programme were among the best representatives of the art in this city. Miss Rose Wirthlin and Miss Clara Norden, who have ever been favorites in their home city, succeeded in making a profound impression with the gathered critics. Miss Wirthiln, who possesses a contralt voice of great range and purity, appeared in a joint recital with Miss Norden, who presided at the plane. Their programme consisted of works of Handel, Strauss, Franz, Schubert, Behumann and Hugo Wolf. Among the others who sang at the cor vention from this city and to whom special credit was given, were Miss Genevieve Hussey, William John Hall and Robert P. Later Miss Hussey and Mr. and Mrs. Hall went to Eureka Springs, where they gave a series of song recitals, being highly praised for their work.

William John Hail read a paper on the voice at the round table discussion at the convention, which contained valuable hints and was highly appreciated.

The graduation exercises of the Weltner Conservatory of Music consisted of four student recitals, June 23, 26, 27 and 29, which were attended by audiences that and helf the large new hall at No. 2620 and helf finney avenue.

The commencement exercises this season were especially notable because of the large number of graduates, there being in all seventy-two pupils, who have completed their course.

The new conservatory is a large two-story building nearly appointed, with a hall $5x55 feet in the rear. It is thorough-ity modern in its equipments.

The following plane and harmony grad-uates were awarded diplomas of the teach-'s course:

There are at work among these no fewer

There are at work among these no fewer than eleven hospital and medical steamers and salling smacks, and the necessity for these will be seen from the havor which storms wreck among these floating towns. March a few years back 20 men and boys were drowned or seriously injured in a single night's gale.

Years ago very serious cases were sent ashore many miles over turbulent sea by the carrier, the injured man being lashed to a newly invented stretcher. This caused untold agony to the unfortunate fishermen, but floating hospitals like the Queen Alexandra, a perfect model of a miniature hospital, have altered all this.

there was no avaistance of any kind in the event of sickness or injury among these poor people.

The master of the Strathcone, Doctor Wilfred Grenfell, is now quite well known in New York, where he has been recently lecturing. He is not only a physician and surgeon, but he is also explorer, magistrate, Llorde agent and most skinful master mariner.

Doctor threafell's reports of his sick calls, both on sea and on land, contain a variety of strange episodes, for he frequently leaves the ship and penetartes into this wild and devolate country by dog team and komatik, his bed weighing but seven pounds and his tent ten.

Often it is terribly difficult for Doctor Grenfell to cater for his sick patients on board, for everything is frozen—the bread, the condensed milk, even the oil in the lamps. And the doctor's servant has to go and "chop" the water for breakfast. Once Doctor Grenfell saw from his bridge an Eskimo boat, the crew of which were frantically waving their skin coats from the ends of oars. The skipper-doctor bore down upon these savages and found they wanted him to take charge of a limatic brother, who, as he hade fair to grow violent, had been safely bound hand and foot to a huge frame structure of logs. SURGEONS HEROIC DEVOTION. The devotion of the surgeons is most erole, and they have been known to take strips of flesh from their own arms and strips of flesh from their own arms and those of their assailants to graft on very bad cases of injury, probably sustained by handling the loaded boges of fish between the trawlers and the steam carriers. Often men aloft in the sailing smacks are hurled overboard or else very seriously hurt by a swinging boom, indeed, it would be difficult to imagine a life more full of discomfort than that of the deepsea fishermen, whose time is divided between furious spells of work, smatches of heavy steep in cold and sodden clothes and precarious moments of leisure.

After slaving through a dreadful stormy night, the fishermen may often find his fingers hadly torn and gashed so that a drop of sait water causes acute agony. And before the advent of these hospitals such wounds were neglected, with very disastrous after-effects. Then there are painful eruptions due to the chaffing of oilskins on arms and wrists constantly wet with sait water, and, last, there were the painful, and often dangerous, stings indicated by certain kinds of fish unfit for human food.

The doctors on board these hospitals also have a pretty wretched time, and often enough it is literally a case of "Physi-

As he left the hospital's side, however, still standing in the boat, he lurched, and to save himself from falling grasped the boat's rail. "It was a dreadful task. I assure you." the surgeon remarked to the present writer, "to bring that unfortunate man on beard my hospital on a dark night, with slippery decks faintly lit with flickering lanterns, that just revealed the tremendous swell that was running. And then, remember, there was the pain from my injured hand, which handleapped me still further."

GO FROM PLEET TO FLEET. These floating hospitals are constantly flitting from feet to feet and burn at least 600 tons of coal a month. At Christmas time .too, they go out from headquarters laden with presents.

and amid a whiriwind of rice the start was made for the Harlem Casino, two blocks above, where the wedding feast was spread. James Hall was driver of the carriage, in which sat the bride and bride-groom and Mrs. Miller. He says a south-tound trolley car stopped and the motorman made signals for him to go shead and then suddenly started up again.

The car struck the wedding carriage full square. It smashed the spokes, broke in the front, spliniered the shafts and knocked down both horses. The driver fell among the kirking legs of the horses, but escaped injury. Spicules of crystal struck young Mr. and Mrs. Campbell on the face and hands, inflicting painful but not serious injuries.
